第四部分

第一节

One possible version*:

Dear Chris,

Last Saturday, our school organized a special event to promote traditional Chinese sports. All students and teachers gathered in the school hall to watch an exciting martial arts performance.

The performers were skilled in various martial arts techniques, including tai chi and Changquan. They demonstrated powerful moves and graceful forms, showing both strength and beauty.

I was amazed by their precision and energy. This event helped me understand the rich cultural heritage of China and inspired many students to learn martial arts in the future. It was a truly unforgettable experience.

Yours,

Li Hua

第二节

【文本大意】本文的语篇类型是记叙文,主题语境为人与社会之应急救援。作者在山区开车时不慎翻车,被困在车内,无法求助。他将小狗 Molly 从车窗推了出去,希望她能寻得帮助……

(1)根据续写第一段首句,再结合上文可知,本段可围绕 Molly 跑出去后可能发生的事情展开续写,且根据续写第二段首句可知,Molly 找来了作者的邻居 Robin。

(2)根据续写第二段首句可知,作者的邻居 Robin 赶来救援。Robin 会如何救出作者呢?作者的小狗 Molly 怎么样了?

One possible version*:

I gently put Molly's body through the hole. "Go home, baby," I said. Molly jumped to the ground and raced up the side of the valley. My heart beat fast in my chest, so I took a pill. I shouted, but knew that wouldn't make any difference. No one would hear. A sense of helpless flooded over me. I sat there for hours and couldn't feel anything in my left leg. When the last bit of light filtering through the leaves faded away, I heard a voice calling my name.

The voice was from Robin, my neighbor. "Help!" I shouted with all my strength. "Are you all right?" Robin yelled back. "I just called the police!" It seemed only minutes later I heard an ambulance approaching. The rescue crew sent me to a hospital without any delay. After all sorts of tests in the hospital, a doctor told me there was nothing serious. Molly got right up next to me on my bed. I suddenly realized that true treasures in life are often found in the companions we choose along the way.

【听力录音材料】

Text 1

W: Honey, this sofa will look nice in the living room under the new painting. The colors will match perfectly! Let's move it together. (1)

M: I'm not sure whether it will fit there. We may need to put it by the window or next to the piano.

Text 2

W: Did you enjoy the museum tour this afternoon? (2)

M: Yes, but the tour guide was in such a hurry that we didn't see many paintings.

W: I completely understand. It felt like we were rushing through each exhibit.

Text 3

W: Shall we do the health examination on Saturday, Aaron?

M: I'll have a chemistry test on that day. Is Sunday OK?

W: Oh, I'm not free then. What about next Wednesday? (3)

M: Fine. (3)

Text 4

W: Are you late because of the traffic jam again, Robert?

M: What if I say it's because my car broke down? Ha-ha, just kidding. Actually my wife couldn't take the children to school. (4)

W: Why not?

M: She couldn't change her shifts.

Text 5

M: How are you getting on with the schedules?

W: I just have one more message to send. Have you got anything else for me to do?

M: Yes, here are some notes for you to type out. (5)

W: OK, just wait for a moment, please.

Text 6

W: Hi, Mark! What have you been up to recently?

M: Hi, Wendy! I've been diving into painting for relaxation and self-expression. (6)

W: That's wonderful to hear! Do you show your artwork anywhere?

M: No, I prefer to keep it personal. I've been giving paintings to close friends and family members. How about you, Wendy?

W: I recently started hiking. It's a fantastic way to stay active and connect with nature.

M: Oh, I love hiking too! Do you have a favorite path?

W: I do. There's a beautiful path near the lake that I love. Maybe we could go on a hike together sometime. (7)

M: That's a great idea.

Text 7

W: Hey, Kevin. How have you been? Where are you working now?

M: Keystone Real Estate. Have you heard of it?

W: Not really. I'm not paying attention to that type of business at the moment. So, you're selling houses? (8)

M: I was. (8) I applied for a transfer to head office. I've actually been working behind the scenes for almost 3 months. (10) I deal with the numbers and financial reports.

W: Oh, I got it. Do you enjoy it?

M: Yes. Although the bonus is only 20% of my salary, I don't need to interact with people and handle complicated social interactions all the time, just the computer and data. (9)

W: Good. Today is September 29th. (10) The National Holiday is drawing near. Any plans?

M: Not yet.

Text 8

M: Hey, Christina. I heard you got a new car. Congratulations!

W: Thanks, Tom. I was tired of riding my bike in the rain, so I decided to get myself a new car. (11)

M: I can understand that. I still take the subway to work, (12) but I've been thinking about getting a car, too.

W: Really? What makes you want to buy a car?

M: I've been going to the beach a lot lately, and it takes me a long time to take the bus. I wish there was a more convenient way to get there.

W: I know what you mean. Having a car makes a big difference. My parents live in the suburbs. I used to have to take a train and then take a taxi from the train station to their house, but now it's much easier to visit them.

M: That's right! I can imagine how convenient it must be to have a car. Do you have any plans with the new car?

W: Yes, I'm planning on driving to my parents' house for dinner this weekend. (13) I'm looking forward to it.

M: That's great. Have fun driving your new car and have a safe trip!

Text 9

W: Are you busy now? I'm almost done with my story, but I can't decide on the ending.

M: Tell me about it. Maybe I can help. (14)

W: Well, it's about a young man who got a large apartment and a lot of money from his uncle. He was sent away at 12, and he has been studying abroad for eight years.

M: When he returns, no one recognizes him, I assume.

W: Exactly. Michael has a good heart, and he wants to find people who are unselfish and trustworthy. So he pretends to be an ordinary person and tests Laura, the woman he is supposed to marry, and the couple, who have cared for his uncle for years. (15)

M: What are the choices for the ending?

W: I'm torn. I don't know whether to reveal if Laura is good or bad. If she is good, Michael will keep the property and marry Laura. If she is bad, Michael will keep his identity secret. The apartment and money will then go to his uncle's caretakers.

M: I like stories with sad endings, but for Hollywood appeal, you'd better go with the other option. (16)

W: It's reasonable. I love your advice. (17)

Text 10

Hello, everyone. My name is Jamie Johnson. I'm an engineer. It's my great honor to be here to share my knowledge with so many scientists. Throughout my career, I've dedicated myself to advancing artificial intelligence, or AI.

Interestingly, I actually majored in marketing in college and had no idea of AI at all. At that time, AI was far away from our daily lives. Apple's Siri was the first application of AI that I had ever known. From that invention, I knew AI would change the world one day. I then threw my heart and soul into it. (18) That was back in 2011. (19) Luckily, pursuing AI has proven to be the right decision. Now the industry has witnessed much progress and plays an increasingly important role in our lives. AI frees people from boring and low-skilled tasks, making our lives easier and more enjoyable. But I feel that we are still in the early stages of AI. We currently view AI technology much like we viewed computers in the 1990s. (20)
